Art Unit: 1651

1. Receipt is acknowledged of the amendment and election response filed August 09, 2004.

2. Claims 1-20 are now pending in this application.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Gundy et al., “Structural and Chemical Characterisation of Echinoderm Non-Fouling Surfaces”.

Gundy et al teaches echinoderms which” surfaces, free from microfouling organisms, despite having an enormous surface area. The major mechanism preventing fouling may be a non-stick surface coat or modified glycocalyx. “ The reference contains structural and physical data for electron microscopy (EM), atomic force microscopy (AFM) and Fourier transform infrared spectroscopy (FTIR), which data is within the scope of the claimed inventions. The Abstract also states:

Art Unit: 1651

“ The cuticle of starfish and sea urchin tube feet and sea cucumber body wall were found to stain positively for anti-collagen type I and anti-chondroitin sulphate. FTIR spectroscopy experiments confirmed that the echinoderm cuticle was predominantly proteoglycan in nature and that its composition could be manipulated with enzymic treatments, in order to elucidate which chemical components contributed towards its anti-adhesive properties. The EM and AFM studies have provided valuable, high resolution, information about the structural arrangement of the echinoderm cuticle.”

Applicant is requested to submit the full paper pertaining to the above abstract.

Applicant will consider allowable subject matter pertaining to the product(s) per se that will not conflict with the products of the abstract.

4. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-20 [6 and 20 included] are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter, which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Art Unit: 1651

5. Applicant is required to submit the structure of the compound or components of the claimed product or composition or sufficient information that will clearly indicate the claimed compound or composition. The instant claims lack the required information, which includes the structure or sufficient properties to reasonably indicate the claimed product, or composition, which includes the melting point, boiling point, density, molecular weight, physical and chemical properties as well as the IR, UV, NMR as some of the properties. The claimed properties must be essentially positive limitations and not intended limitations.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

A search and examination of the claimed product or compositions cannot be properly searched and examined absent the properties for the product or composition. The functional properties have been considered to be insufficient for a proper search and examination.

6. No claim is allowed.
